A little boy about 10-years old, was standing before a shoe store on the roadway, barefooted, peering through the window, and shivering with cold. A lady approached, took him by the hand, went into the store and asked the clerk to get a half-dozen pair of socks and a pair of shoes. She next asked the clerk if he could get her a basin of water and a towel. She then took the little boy to the back of the store, washed his little feet, and dried them with the towel. By this time the clerk had returned with the socks and shoes. She patted the little boy on the head and said, "no doubt you will be comfortable now." As she turned to go, the astonished boy caught her by the hand, and looking up into her face, with tears in his eyes, asked her, "are you God's wife?"
